Yunker Rink Wins G.C. in Ladies' Spiel

The first open bonspiel of the Irma Ladies Curling Club was held here on February 2 and 3. This proved to be a thoroughly enjoyable event for all concerned. Even the weatherman mislaid the blizzard which we have long taken for granted as part and parcel of every Irma spiel. His forbearance helped greatly toward the comfort of everyone.

Another great benefit was the help received by Messrs. Anquist, Smallwood, Fischer and McMillan who so ably took over the kitchen duties at the rink. We understand that Carl's coffee was the talk of the town. So competent did the culinary efforts of this male quartette prove that we are beginning to wonder if there might be something in all this talk about masculine superiority. If any of them have dishpan hands let it be considered a badge of honor.

On Friday evening the W.I. served a tasty banquet in the church basement. All forty-four ladies of the eleven contesting rinks were able to attend. Speeches were made by our president Mrs. R. A. McFarland, Mrs. E. W. Carter of Wainwright, Mrs. Hockett of Viking and Mrs. Sundberg of Wainwright. The results of the curling are as follows:

Grand Challenge
Fenton def. Sundberg; Anquist def. Fischer; Enger def. Hockett; Fenton def. Fischer; Yunker def. Enger; Sather def. Carter; Milne def. Drewicki; Yunker then def. Sather in the final.

Consolation

High School Rink Show Up Well In Play Downs

Keen interest was taken last week in the career of our High School rink playing for the Northern Alberta title among high school curlers at Edmonton.

The Irma boys, Darrell Hockett, Red Frickleton, Wm. Masson and Gary Jones upheld the Irma curling traditions very well, winning their first five games straight and won all games in section C. This standing among the 24 competing rinks was fourth.

The boys were awarded clocks as prizes for being winners of section C.

Easterly Echoes

Mrs. W. Sanders entertained the Battle River W.I. at her home last Thursday. Mr. H. Morse held a spelling contest as her share of the program. Mrs. Patterson donated the draw and it was won by Mrs. R. Dempsey. Mrs. H. Morse and Mrs. C. Steele were the hostesses.

Congratulations are certainly in order for the Yunker family from the recent results in curling spels. Miss K. Yunker with her third Irene, second Mrs. A. Cook and lead Miss Hazel Yunker won the Grand Challenge in the Irma Ladies' first open bonspiel held last Friday and Saturday. Mr. M. Yunker with his rink won the lovely sets of dishes at the Wainwright Farmers' rink. Mr. M. Yunker with his rink Messrs. A. Firkus, N. Willerton and A. Taylor co-operated to win third in both competitions. One was a merchandise certificate at L. Tony's and the other a five pound pair of grease.

Not to be outdone, Mr. W. Lawson, with his rink of Messrs. G. Tindall, L. Tindall and W. Laycock came second in the second event. The prize being bags of flour. Curling has certainly captured the fancy of the farmer, his wife, his son and his daughter.

Mrs. J. Savard and family arrived home from a nice visit with her parents at the coast.

Glen-Coa Gleanings

Mumps are certainly on the "rage" in our district. The latest one to succumb is Nathan Fuder. As far as we know the following pupils of Glenholm have also had the mumps: Warren Fuder, two more Cairns boys, Katherine Spooner, Sigmund Gulbraa and Bessie Pedel.

Mrs. A. Lindquist of Edmonton is visiting friends about here. There has been some sickness in our district, colds and the flu. Thus for this reason, plus the cold weather and heavy roads, people are staying close to their cosy fires.

Irma Curlers Win Prizes

Irma winners in the recent men's open spiel at Wainwright were Wm. Hubman, M. Yunker, Wm. Lawson and A. Cook. These boys won top honors in the Merchants event. Their prizes were dinner sets and trophies.

C. Milne, N. McMillan, C. Anquist and T. Hill won third prize in the same event, and literally "brought home the bacon."

C. Smallwood, J. McKay, K. Coffin and A. Firkus won the G.C. event and the prizes were two lovely auto rugs for each player.

At Hardisty V. Sampson, L. Meier, E. Fuder and H. Barber won second in the Grand Challenge. Their prizes were lamps.

Mercury Mine May Reopen In British Columbia

PINCHI LAKE, B.C.—The ghosts of war are lurking around this deserted village in northern British Columbia.

An all-time high price for quicksilver may mean reopening of North America's only major mercury mine here.

During the last war, Pinchi, owned by Consolidated Mining and Smelting company of Trail, B.C., was the only large supplier of the vital metal to the allied cause.

When the war ended and mercury prices slumped sharply, it was unprofitable to mine mercury from the big but thin-grade deposits, and the operation was shut down.

Mercury, used in the manufacture of explosives, now has hit a record price in world markets. Pinchi may be reopened as the tempo of defence preparedness accelerates.

Consolidated has not made any announcement about the property but the company recently allocated $150,000 for expansion projects in B.C. Some of this may go toward a new start at Pinchi.

Pinchi Lake, located northwest of Prince George, was a "hush-hush" project during the war because it was the major source of mercury for explosives for the allies.

After the war, mercury prices skidded to $70 a flask of 76 pounds. Company officials said it cost $108 a flask to produce it. However, the price now has risen to $233.50 for a flask. It jumped more than $43 a flask in one day at New York.

Since the war, the village of Pinchi, which had modern stores, hotels and movie theatre, has been all but deserted.

Success comes in "cans".

New Refinery To Be In Operation Soon

WINNIPEG — A $10,000-a-day "gusher" soon will be pouring oil out of East St. Paul, eight miles north of Winnipeg.

Gasoline, fuel oil and kerosene—refined from crude piped in from Alberta—will be produced at a new (Imperial Oil) refinery at a rate exceeding $40,000 annually.

This new industry will employ some 175 persons and have a payroll of $600,000. Most help will be hired locally, although technicians and key personnel will be imported.

Production will total 350,000 gallons a day.

A 400-acre East St. Paul "tank farm" will contain 42 storage tanks with total capacity of 35,000,000 gallons—10,000,000 gallons more than greater Winnipeg consumes in an entire year.

Early in 1951, crude oil will flow from Alberta, via Gretna, Man., into a group of 2,000,000-gallon storage tanks. The crude oil will be distributed automatically through the various units of the $10,000,000 plant.

The refinery proper has two main units. The first is a distillation plant to turn crude into raw gasoline, kerosene and tractor oil, diesel oil and stove and furnace fuels. The second separates gases produced by distillation and cracking processes.

Some are blended with the raw gasoline to give quick-starting properties.

Funny and Otherwise

"I advertised that I would welcome the poor to my church," exclaimed the minister, "and after inspecting today's collection, I see that they have come."

A customer stormed into a butcher shop and flung down a piece of brass on the counter. "Will you please explain that?" he raged. "I found it in the ground round steak I just bought."

The butcher picked up the bit of metal and looked it over carefully. Then he scratched his head. "Guess I musta forgot to take the collar off."

"Come on, Willie, and show us how you can swim." "Naw, I can't." "But you learnt swimming at the school baths." "Yes, but there wasn't so much water and it had slides to it."

"Look man, you have been really good to me, you have paid for the dinner, the theatre, and the drinks, —it's my turn now to be kind. Two five-cent fares please, conductor."

The rich man employs a butler, a valet, a secretary, a laundress, a cook, a housekeeper, two housemaids, a gardener and a chauffeur—the poor man just gets married.

In a crowded street car a very thin lady who sat next to an extremely fat lady remarked: "They really should charge by weight." The fat lady replied: "But if they did, dearie, they couldn't afford to stop for some people."

A columnist appeared in the Flamont (Minn.) Daily Sentinel: "Notice—I will no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by wife. (Signed) L.B."

Just below it appeared a rebuttal ad: "Mr. L.B. does not have to be responsible for any debts I may incur. He can't even pay his own. (Signed) Mrs. L.B."

It happened at an old-fashioned revival meeting. The evangelist was the shouting type. After a long and vehement exhortation, he demanded of his congregation: "All those who want to go to heaven, stand up!"

All rose quickly to their feet except one little man in the corner. The evangelist advanced on him, a glare in his eyes: "What?" he shouted, "don't you want to go to heaven?"

"Not immediately," replied the little man.

MOSQUITO LARVAE LIVE UNDER ICE

WINNIPEG — J. E. Wallis, naturalist, told the Natural History society he had found mosquito larvae and pupae, quite active, under a layer of ice half an inch thick at Churchill.

Mr. Wallis said he had made this discovery while doing insect research for the federal government mobile radar laboratories at Churchill. His colored films on the northland contrasted the stunted vegetation of Churchill with the heavier growth at more northerly Fort Smith, N.W.T.

War Nerves May Produce Eczema Rash

OTTAWA — The current international tension may produce a new crop of skin disease if it goes on much longer, an eminent British dermatologist predicted. Dr. W. J. O'Donovan, O.B.E., formerly medical director at the London Hospital who recently became professor of dermatology at Ottawa University, said many persons may acquire nervous eczema, engendered by worry, which causes the nerves to transmit an itching sensation to the skin. 2019

B.C. Produces 55 Per Cent. Canada's Hop Requirements

VANCOUVER—British Columbia's Fraser Valley now produces enough hops to supply 55 per cent of Canada's brewery needs, Clinton L. Jennings of New York, vice-president of Canadian Hop Growers Limited, said during a visit here.

He said that B.C. produces about 9,000 bales of hops yearly. Ontario produces several hundred bales a year. Remainder is imported from the United States.

The company operates a 447-acre field at Sumas, 60 miles southeast of Vancouver, said to be the third largest individual hop farm in the world. This farm has grown 3,000 bales in one year.

Picking has been partly mechanized. A machine, something like a cotton gin and operated by 15 men, is used. Mr. Jennings says this does the work of about 1,200 pickers.

Exploration Of Gas In Alberta May Increase

CALGARY — The provincial government's decision against the export of natural gas from Alberta at the present time probably will result in a record-breaking program of gas exploration in the province.

This was one of the things evident in the reactions of oilmen here to the government announcement.

Most oilmen expressed deep disappointment at the decision in off-the-record comments, although few had any statement to make until they had given more detailed study to Premier Manning's announcement.

Some expressed fear that Alberta's natural gas would be "bottled up here for a long time" and the lucrative Pacific coast market may be lost to Texas gas. The petroleum and natural gas conservation board's estimate of economically recoverable reserves of 4,438,000,000 cubic feet was thought to be conservative. Estimates at last year's hearing ranged from six trillion and up, about twice Alberta's needs for the next 30 years.

Leading gas searchers—Canadian Delphi, Pacific Petroleum, and McColl Union all expressed intentions of continuing as rapidly as possible their search for gas from the international boundary to northern Alberta.

Smiley Rabon, manager of Canadian Delphi, one of the applicants for gas exports said his company will "go ahead full steam" with its program for proving up gas reserves and deliverability.

The disappointment and surprise was reflected on the Calgary stock market, as shares dropped. Jumping Pound company stocks dropped from 49 cents to 30 cents immediately after the announcement, but towards noon, there was marked improvement on the market.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Mrs. Harte's Boarder

Mr. Houseman Had Not Broken Any Laws. Or Had He?

By SAMUEL CAMPBELL

MRS. HARTE had begun to suspect him the day after he rented her only vacant room in the attic; but she kept her feelings to herself. She had to be sure.

Phoebe Harte's large, rambling boarding house was a kind of landmark in Centerville. It was located within five minutes' walking distance of the business section of the town, the bus terminal, and the railroad station. When John Harte, her railroad engineer husband, was killed several years ago, Phoebe, a rather nervous and imaginative creature, decided to take in boarders rather than live in the big house alone. There were ten of them, mostly railroad men. Mr. Houseman made the eleventh. But he was different from the others.

When applying for the room, he told her that the nature of his work called for the comparative peace and quiet offered by a small town such as Centerville. Mrs. Harte didn't know what a philologist was, so he explained to her that he was doing valuable work for his university by translating Latin, Greek and Hebrew manuscripts.

When he walked over from the station that first day, carrying his briefcase, he possessed a scholarly attitude.

"He was undoubtedly a gentleman," Phoebe had said, "a man of culture. And what's more, he had money. He paid rent for two months in advance!"

But tonight, after boarding with Mrs. Harte for only one month, he had told her his work was finished and that he would leave in the morning. Phoebe was puzzled and a little frightened. Her star boarder looked perfectly harmless. He was always quite jovial at the dinner table. Sometimes he played cards with the men and told funny stories. But it was a most unusual incident which had occurred once each weekend since Mr. Houseman's arrival that set Phoebe's nerves on edge. Tonight, she would muster up enough courage to follow Mr. Houseman and see where he went with the tiny brown, papered packages he had seen him take out, and perhaps learn something about the blood-stained handkerchiefs she had found in the waste paper basket.

The Centerville Gazette's headlines were not screaming about any fiendish murder or anything of the kind. Centerville was a lazy, dreamy place to live. Nothing ever happened here. But still, Mrs. Harte had a hunch. At exactly a quarter to twelve, the same time as usual, she heard Mr. Houseman's soft tread coming down the stairs. When he had closed the front door softly behind him, she followed, keeping about half a block behind.

He went two blocks down, then cut over to Main Street, Centerville had come to bed. The theatre manager and the shop windows were dark. The broad expanse of pavement, wet with the drizzling rain, mirrored the red reflection of a lonely neon sign at the far end of the street—FOOL ROOM.

Since this was the only place open, Phoebe's heart gave a bit of a jump. Now silly and suspicious she had been. Of course! Mr. Houseman was going to play billiards. It would take his mind off his work. That was it! But her heart sank when he trudged on past the pool room and headed for the open highway.

The houses, as well as the stores, were thinning out quickly now as the hunter and the quarry left the town behind and were swallowed up by the darkness. On the way . . . over the level-crossing; past the canning factory; past the high school and the war memorial, and stopped only when Mr. Houseman reached the bridge over Miller's Creek.

Leaning against the concrete railing, he lit a cigar. Mrs. Harte had drawn close enough now to smell the familiar aroma. She watched him glance furtively around, then take a tiny, brown-papered package, about one inch by two inches, from his pocket and throw it into the deepest part of the river.

Nervous, sensitive Phoebe Harte covered deeper into the shadows of the hedge as Mr. Houseman, puffing furiously on his cigar, made his way past her back to town. She would never know, unless she asked, what was in the little packages, and why should she ask? After all, Mr. Houseman had not broken any laws. Or had he?

NAMED COMMANDER — Wing Commander R. L. A. "Red" Smith, of Regina, has been named commanding officer of the newly formed 411 Reserve Fighter Squadron in Toronto.

A 28-year-old law student at Osgoode Hall, he went overseas in early 1940, few fighters out of Malta and England. During his first tour of operations he shot down five enemy aircraft and after returning to operational flying upon completion of a tour of instructional duties in northern Scotland, he brought his total to 13 enemy aircraft destroyed. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and Bar in recognition of his outstanding flying record and at the close of the war was commanding officer of 412 Squadron. He joined 401 Squadron in Montreal on his return from overseas and when he moved to Toronto to enroll at Osgoode Hall, he became a flight lieutenant in 400 City of Toronto Squadron.

Daniel Houseman left the next morning and returned to his university, not knowing that someone had followed him on the last of his mysterious missions in the night.

Two days later the perplexed priestess of Centerville's most popular boarding house received a letter in the mail:

"My Dear Mrs. Harte:
"I wish to thank you for being so kind to me during the past month. I enjoyed my stay in Centerville and accomplished a great deal of work . . . more than I expected to. However, there is one most annoying practice carried on by the boarders in your house to which I would like to direct your attention. Each week, approximately one dozen old razor blades are carelessly thrown into the waste paper basket in the bathroom. Might I suggest, in the interests of safety, that a proper container be placed on the premises for the adequate disposal of used blades? The first night I stayed in your house, I accidentally rubbed the cap off my toothpaste tube into the basket. On retrieving the same, I cut my right index finger almost to the bone. I trust that you will not be offended in any way by this suggestion, as I hope to return to Centerville next summer. Yours respectfully,
"Daniel Houseman."
